(dd) (mm) (yyyy)

Were these the cat's first ever vaccines? Yes No

Has the cat ever had a vaccinate reaction to your knowledge? Yes No Unsure

If your animal requires vaccines please read below, if you are unsure you should contact your veterinarian:

For all surgical procedures we strongly recommend that your cat is up to date on vaccinations for both FVRCP and Rabies. This requires your cat to have been vaccinated within the last 3 years. If your pet is already up to date on vaccines we require that you bring proof of vaccinations (a signed vaccination certificate) at the time of admittance.

If your cat is not up to date on vaccines you have three options:

- 1) Schedule an appointment with your local veterinarian at least 2 weeks before the procedure.
- 2) Request we schedule a vaccination appointment during one of our vaccination clinics. The vaccines should be administered at least 2 weeks prior to the surgery date. If these are first time vaccines or this is a first/second booster in the kitten vaccination series we recommend that the surgery be scheduled 6-8 weeks post vaccination so that any required boosters can be given before the surgery.
- 3) Bring your animal in unvaccinated. This is the least preferable option. Not only will your animal not be protected against the diseases which are present in the vaccines, if a vaccination reaction occurs during surgery while under anesthetic this can be very dangerous. If you choose to bring your animal in without up to date vaccines we will require you to sign a waiver acknowledging you are aware of the risks associated. You will also be required to have your pet vaccinated at the time of surgery at your own expense of $20.
